

MONOLOGUES

This monologue is from a Stage Partners play, free to read in full at yourstagepartners.com.

All The Girls Hate Me at West Haddock High by A.M. Dittman

(ALLISON is approached by a fellow student who is desperately trying to find a date to the prom.)

ALLISON

You know, I think maybe I will go to the dance with you.

(Beat.)

Not of course as your date. It won't be a date date. As you know, I'm interested in the human condition. I am prepared to go to the dance with you as a social experiment. I will take notes and then write a paper based on my findings. You will be judged on a scale of one to ten in a variety of different categories. Your score will be tabulated at the end and that's for you to keep. It'll be your number. A number between one and ten. I will judge you on appearance, smell, likability, conversation skills, social graces, dancing ability. Things like that. Everything you say or do will go into my report. Whether or not you try to kiss me, what you wear, how you smell, how sweaty your hands are. Etcetera.

(Beat.)

I don't know if it will be in a scientific journal or just online for everyone to peruse. But it will be made widely available. In the end, it's all about helping humanity.

(Beat.)

You are saying no to me? You are not brave.

ALL THE GIRLS HATE ME AT WEST HADDOCK HIGH by A.M. Dittman

Length: 30-35 minutes

Cast Size: 6-22 actors (suggested casting: 10F, 2M)

Genre: Comedy

Synopsis: The one where the boy tries to find a girl who likes him. Always tougher than it sounds. Just ask that guy over there. Or there. Or right there. Or there. And yeah, that guy over there too.